

ABSTRACT

A method of a game of chance wherein the measured performances of at least two participants in the subject of the game of chance are combined to determine a winner.